EXALTED BUSHFACES of the Mystic Knights of the supreme Order of Bushfaces, namely Alan Hammond and Lyle Attebury, are shown above getting ready to register all former Bushfaces of the Centennial, and those daring young men who want to join the Bushfaces, for a beard-growing contest that starts today. Sign up is at Hammonds Studio, or at Edwards Studio; the contest will run until Veterans' Homecoming day, or until the annual meeting of the Bushfaces, in November; $50 in prize money is on the line. Smooth faces will be verified at time of sign up. It's all for fun, members of the Bushface organization, after acquiring respectable beards' planning to sell permits to shave to all smoothfaces, money raised going into the Porterville Museum fund.

Springville Utility Vote "In Near Future"

SPRINGVILLE, Aug. 1 — Vote on a proposed bond issue to construct a sewage disposal system at Springville, and to improve the water system, can be expected "in the near future", according to Carlos Gregg, president of the board of directors of the Springville Public Utility district.

Gregg states that details were ironed out at a recent meeting with federal officials in San Francisco, attended by himself, Ernie Rutherford and Ken Van Ness, utility district Directors, and by Jim Sorenson, district engineer.

The project, that involves the borrowing of federal funds, was delayed because of technicalities in the way a bond issue must be worded in California.

Residents of the Springville Public Utility district will vote on a proposed $210,000 bond issue to finance the project, with $30,000 going toward water system improvement and the balance for construction of a sewage disposal system. Money will come through a federal government loan, financed by 30-year bonds, divided into general obligation and revenue bonds.

Gregg says that as soon as technical aspects of the project can be worked out, an election date will be set.

Engineers Join In Study Of 65 Freeway

PORTERVILLE, Aug. 1 — New plans for 65 freeway west of Porterville were studied Tuesday night at a meeting of Porterville city personnel, planning commission members, and chamber of commerce representatives with Bill Welch, state highway engineer for division 5, and others from his office.

The meeting at the Porterville city hall was arranged by Porterville Mayor Bill Rodgers and Chamber Manager Allan Coates; ultimate objective is to complete and precise the 65 freeway plan. Public hearings will be held prior to the formal adoption of any plan.

Considering some of the objections to a plan presented about two years ago at a public hearing in Porterville, highway engineers have provided access to the freeway from the Rockwell Manufacturing company plant through an interchange and access roads at North Grand avenue; a partial interchange is provided at Henderson.

Modified plans for the Olive avenue interchange in relation to an underpass at Morton street were discussed, however, this phase of the new state proposal will be further studied and modified, with the engineers to draw a third plan that will be, to some

TRAFFIC SAFETY PROGRAM FOR 65

PORTERVILLE, Aug. 1 — Distribution of handbills that explain the best method of crossing highway 65 are being distributed as a safety measure by the Porterville Exchange club, the Porterville Safety Council and the California Highway patrol.

Assistance is being provided by The Wheels, The Spinners, and by personnel of the Porterville State hospital. Object is to instruct drivers on proper and safe methods of crossing the highway at intersections, thereby cutting down on the traffic accident rate.

On the four mile section of divided highway, three fatal accidents have occurred and a total of 15 accidents since the section was completed.

Cultivating And Furrowing Tool Invented By Jimmy Nelson Working Out Well For Row Crops, Orchards

PORTERVILLE, Aug. 1 — A simple cultivating and furrowing tool, invented by Jimmy Nelson, is working out well in row crop fields and in orchards, and may lead to a new manufacturing plant in this area.

The Nelson tool cultivates, mulches and digs a wide furrow in a single operation, working successfully in sandy soils as well as in adobe and hardpan.

It mounts on any tractor tool bar, or a bar can be constructed for the installation; it does away with the front cultivator tool that is used extensively ahead of furrowing shovels.

Greatest asset, however, is better water penetration from the wide, flat furrow, with Nelson stating that in his own cotton field he has a run of 1320 feet in hard pan soil, which he irrigates in eight hours, with water soaking and penetrating as it flows down the row.

There is no waste water at the end of the rows because of the excellent penetration; water can be run faster, and irrigations can be spaced further apart.

Farmers around the area who are using the Nelson cultivator-furrower, verify the features claimed for the new tool, which is also being used in deciduous orchards, and appears to have possibilities for citrus.

Actually, the tool is so simple that the obvious question is,

THE NELSON cultivating and furrowing tool, invented by Jimmy Nelson, of Porterville, is proving an effective piece of equipment in the field, cultivating and mulching as it makes a wide furrow from which excellent water penetration is obtained. Nelson is shown with the tool; a typical tractor setup; and the payoff - wide, mulched furrows for row and orchard crops.

FROST PROTECTION ORDINANCE

VISALIA, Aug. 1 — Now in its third draft is a proposed ordinance concerning control of frost protection equipment in Tulare county, dealing principally with restrictions to cut down the amount of carbonous material that escapes into the air from old-type heaters, and from the burning of tires.

Work on an ordinance started some time ago when county supervisors received an organized protest from county residents concerning the nuisance created from smudging during the cold weather of last December and January, and directed the agricultural commissioner to prepare such an ordinance.

Farmers interested in the problems of smudging have been working on a control ordinance in cooperation with the office of the county agricultural commissioner.

Following are some of the key provisions of the proposed ordinance, however, this ordinance may be further revised prior to the time that county supervisors actually act on it.

Section 6032, (a) Except as provided in sub-section (b) of this section, it shall be unlawful for any person, for the purpose of frost protection, to burn any rubber, rubber tires, or any other substance containing rubber, or to burn oil or other combustible substances in drums, pails, or other containers except orchard heaters.

(b) If any person presents to the County Agricultural commissioner satisfactory proof that orchard heaters which comply with Section 6033 of this article will not be available for purchase prior to the time that they will be needed for frost protection, the Agricultural commissioner shall issue a permit to such person which allows him to burn the substances referred to in subsection (a) of this section. All such permits shall terminate on the 1st day of November, 1964, and all persons shall comply with subsection (a) of this section after the 1st day of November, 1964.

Section 6033, Orchard heaters, permitted and prohibited types. Orchard heaters may be used for frost protection if they are so designed or equipped, or can be operated or regulated, so as not to discharge into the atmosphere unconsumed carbonous matter at a rate in excess of one gram per minute.

Orchard heaters of this type include, but are not limited to, the pipeline system and those heaters which are commonly known or designated as the return stack heater, the internal return stack heater, the Jumbo Cone heater, the coke heater, and the 18-inch and 24-inch lazy flame heaters.

Except as provided in Section 6034 of this article, it shall be unlawful to use, light, operate or permit to be used, lighted or operated, any orchard heater which discharges unconsumed solid carbonous matter into the atmosphere at a rate in excess of one gram per minute.

Section 6034, Nonconforming heaters, continued use of certain types. Any person who owns or has in his possession, on the ef-

Editorial Comment

RESTRICTION ON HEATERS

There seems to be inevitable difference in points of view as population increases in an agricultural area — latest in Tulare county involves the nuisance created by orchard heaters.

Published on page 1 is a resume of a proposed county ordinance regulating heater type and use in the county.

If you are a citrus grower you better take a good look, and if you don't see what you like, maybe you better get in touch with the office of the county agricultural commissioner.

There is no doubt but that an ordinance will be passed to control the smoke created by heaters; major provisions of the proposed ordinance are such that citrus growers "can live with them," in the opinion of farmers who have been watching the development of the ordinance.

But we still suggest that you take a look at it, not with the idea of killing it, because there is a need for control, but rather with the idea of keeping it within reasonable bounds from the standpoint of agricultural producers themselves.

After all, the time to get interested in legislation is before it is passed.

GRAPE GROWERS REJECT ORDER

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 1 — California grape growers have voted to terminate the marketing order for Central California crushing grapes, following a vigorously contested producer referendum vote. Growers cast 6,700 ballots, with 52 per cent favoring termination.

State Scene

By JAMES DORAIS

Governor Brown's stunning defeat on his proposal for a state personal income tax withholding plan furnishes reassuring evidence that legislative bodies are still responsive to the will of the people.

Obviously, the Governor never expected his modest proposal to stir up such a storm.

The argument for the withholding plan was logical enough: placing state income tax collections on a pay-as-you-go basis would merely follow the pattern established for two decades on the federal level. The state would get a one-year shot in the arm from doubled collections the first year (or something less than doubled, depending on whatever "forgiveness" formula was adopted).

But the people didn't buy it. And they made it crystal clear to their representatives in Sacramento that they didn't.

The most interesting part of the affair is that it also proved that when a public issue is thoroughly publicized and actively debated, the people can be counted on to make an intelligent decision.

There was nothing emotional about the public's rejection of the withholding program; it was a purely cerebral decision, based on first-hand understanding of the pros and cons of the issue.

Withholding was rejected because people realized, after long experience with the federal withholding tax, that the pay-as-you-go principle makes it all too easy to forget that one is paying taxes at all, and makes it all too easy for the taxing jurisdiction to up the ante without effective protest.

Recently a West Virginia photo service business instituted a unique plan to offset the soporific effect of collecting taxes by payroll deductions. Under the plan, taxes are deducted only once a month. The company's president explains the plan's effect:

"Mrs. A—whose salary is $125 a week, under the system of weekly deductions would draw $99.29 a week, and she just took it for granted that was what she was making. Now under our system of collection, she draws $125 the first three weeks of the month and the last week $22.68. Now she realizes she pays in taxes almost a full week's pay out of a month."

The company has found that its employees have become very tax-conscious. It also saves about $10 per year per employee in book-keeping costs.

Reportedly, the Internal Revenue Service isn't very happy about once-a-month withholding and may challenge its legality.

The withholding tax gimmick is painless, like taking dope; only the withdrawal pains hurt. Californians have made it very clear that on the state level they don't want to acquire the habit.

AGRICULTURE BUILDING SITE SET FOR HYDE PROPERTY IN SPLIT VOTE BY SUPERVISORS: "PRESSURE" CHARGED

VISALIA, Aug. 1 — Tulare County's new agriculture building will be constructed on the Hyde property tract, west of the county courthouse in Visalia, it was determined last week by a 3-2 vote of county supervisors.

Ray Longley, of the fifth district, and Don Hillman, of the second district, voted against placing the building on the Hyde property site; Charles Cummings, of the first district, along with Malcolm Crawford, fourth district, and Carl Booth, third district, voted in favor.

Longley had previously protested the placing of the agriculture building in the courthouse area because of lack of sufficient planning; because coordinated architectural style would add unnecessary cost to the project, and because available space at the proposed location is filling up rapidly.

Longley favored Mooney Grove as site for the building.

He also charged that location of the $600,000 building was being dictated by a "pressure group".

Sam Newman, Visalia farmer who has led the fight for a new agriculture building, after thanking the board for its action, took exception to Longley's "pressure group" charge.

Before further action is taken, it is likely that master planning of the entire county courthouse site will be further studied.

NEW BOOKS OFFERED AT CITY LIBRARY

For the last four months, THE ORDEAL OF POWER: A POLITICAL MEMOIR OF THE EISENHOWER YEARS, by Emmet J. Hughes, has been on the national best seller list, and rightly so. It is an extraordinary book, a thoughtful and penetrating study of what constitutes the executive role. The author was close to Eisenhower first as a campaign speech writer, then as special consultant in, what was to him, the tragic second term. Eisenhower emerges at one and the same time as both a greater man a lesser executive leader than either his advocates or his opponents might expect. This is a book for careful study; it is on a higher than journalistic level, and ranks with the best of the works dealing with the American presidency.

In THE SPLENDOR OF ISRAEL, Robert Payne give his readers a country in which 2,000 years of the past live in close relation with the pioneer state of today and tomorrow. There is an immediacy in his reporting that brings the past into the present — he moves from places to peoples, from ancient Jerusalem to modern Tel Aviv, to Haifa, Nazareth, Tiberias and back again to Jerusalem. Israel of the Old Testament and the New emerges as he digs into the Archaeological layers, and into the hearts and minds of the inhabitants from Galilee to the Negev. A fine book, splendidly done.

One of the most fascinating books to come our way in a long time is, WESTWARD TILT, by Neil Morgan. Californians, especially, will find this book interesting and enlightening. According to Mr. Morgan: "Americans have sought to interpret the twentieth-century move westward in historic terms, but this is a move without precedent . . . this continental tilt has been born of a modern American phenomenon: a nation so prosperous and so mobile that its people are free to go in search of a more luxurious way of life . . . the West has become a center of innovation, the newest ideas of industry and science go into quick full use . . . it is a land to which people are driven not by poverty, but by high energy and daring . . ." If you would like a deeper understanding of the great westward migration this book will surely give it to you.

Calf crop in California for 1963 is estimated at 1,562,000 head.

If your husband is bored with lawn mowing, you can solve the problem by planting flowering trees. This adds obstacles to the course and gives him something to think about as he dodges amongst the brush. Trees with thorns are especially good as the reward for miscalculating is prompt.

Of course, he may actually enjoy the shade and color provided by such small trees as crepe myrtle. These bloom from now to winter with bright red, pink, or lavender flowers. They are hardy and grow in either adobe or sandy soils.

A taller tree which provides both shade and color is the newer sunburst locust. A tree with bright yellow new growth, it appears to be blooming even when it isn't. Any lawn mower would be proud to mow around a tree like this. Especially on a warm day as it makes shade of excellent quality with minimum care.

Red leaf plums remain very popular as an ornamental tree. Their bright leaves make them easy to see even when mowing after dark. Along with this feature, their contrasting color is an addition to any landscaping. All of these trees can be planted now and are large enough to make accidental cutting off with the mower almost an impossibility.

Our Town

By GARDNER WHEELER

VICKY DECIDED TO GO TO EUROPE; VICKY IS NOW IN EUROPE

YOUR CORRESPONDENT HAS recently become an expert on world travel. This was not a deliberate effort on my part, but came about by accident, like so many notable careers. It all started some two years ago when one of the junior members of our household announced thusly: "I have been writing some friends in Europe and have decided to take a trip there. This pronouncement was made in much the same manner as one would say, "I think I'll take a stroll down Main street."

I PROMPTLY LAUNCHED INTO one of my geographical dissertations about spans of ocean, distances from country to country and other facts to dim the budding enthusiasm. Secretly, I thought the idea would pass, something like the three day measles. After all, we had survived the plan to buy an elephant for a pet, and a trip to Europe seemed equally implausible.

THIS ONLY PROVES HOW wrong we can be about teen-agers on occasion. Given the proper desire and aim, they can be as tenacious as a bulldog. From the time of the announcement two years ago, Europe has been the prime target. It has been a long and devious road. Many hours of baby sitting went into the effort. Peach packing also contributed to the cause, and then there were those numbing hours of summer score-keeping at the ball park. Those seats aren't padded, you know. I began to think we were housing a Miss Scrooge on the premises, or possibly Miss Merlin the Magician. Every time I laid down a loose coin or two, it would disappear into the "travel fund".

SAVING AND SCRIMPING finally paid off. Early this month, Miss Victoria Wheeler launched her career as a European traveler. As a student from Fresno State, she is Art Touring the famous spots of Europe. The initial leg of the trip was on the P & O Lines out of San Francisco, via Panama Canal and way points in the Caribbean.

WHAT IS MAKING ME the expert on world travel are the running accounts of life on shipboard and at various ports-of-call. Vicky has only written one letter, but it has been in serial form. In each port, she mails what she has written since the last mailing, then continues her day to day accounts. We will get the "With Love" part of the letter when she gets home.

THE LETTERS HAVE BEEN a literary triumph which is a credit to the PUHS English Department. If I were lazy, I would edit a few and use them for a column. It might be a step upward at that. Some terse comments do bear repeating. Regarding Acapulco: "The natives stare, the beggars put on a performance for the tourists, and the auto drivers are busy running down pedestrians." About Caracao in the Netherlands Antilles, "This is just like Amsterdam in the Old World. The architecture is strictly Dutch and everything is so clean. They tell me that the town is cleaned every morning at three o'clock." Or on sighting Le Havre from shipboard: "It was like a fantasy with the tiny, white houses dotting the hill-sides. We kept pinching ourselves to see if it were real."

WE ARE NOW AWAITING the latest word from Rome and Venice, to fill out our vicarious, European voyage. I have discovered the main ingredients for a European trip, though, which I pass on for free. They are perseverance, singleness of purpose and thrift.

County Chamber Opposes Change At Two Lakes

VISALIA, Aug. 1 — Opposition to turning recreation areas at Lake Success and Terminus over to the U.S. Army engineers, and favor of continuing county control as at present, has been voiced by the Tulare county chamber of commerce personnel.

Decision to turn over recreation administration to the Army engineers was announced last week by county supervisors; opposition to the decision has been expected by Domer Power, president of the county chamber; by Gil Swift, vice president; and by Dalton Verry, chamber manager.

Verry pointed out that the county chamber spends considerable money promoting recreation, and other facets of the county's economy. "We preach local control," he said, "then turn the areas over to the federal government—which couldn't care less. The minute we have a problem we run to the state or federal government."

"Since the county has already met the cost of recreation, it should reap the rewards. We have no proof the recreation areas will not pay their own way. We have only operated the Success area two years and the Terminus area less than a full year."

Concerning operating costs, County Administrator Vance Venables reported that capital outlay of county funds at both lakes amounted to $380,699.23, as of June 30 of this year, including long-term investments.

Up to the same date, revenues totaled $25,044, with $20,495.56 of the total received during the fiscal year ended June 30.

tions as demanded by patterns of increasing traffic. extent, a combination of the plan presented two years ago and the second plan presented Tuesday night.

Maps showing modifications of the second plan will be sent to the city of Porterville as soon as completed, probably within a few days.

Meanwhile, maps showing both the first and second proposals for freeway 65 are on display in the council chamber of the Porterville city hall.

Cultivating Tool

"Why didn't someone think of this a long time ago?" Mounted on a steel extension from the tool bar, the cultivator has a leading edge that can be set for tilt and depth — around two inches being used in some cotton fields.

As the leading edge cultivates and mulches, metal wings, extending back in a V shape, mold the furrow. The wings are hinged in front and are held together in the back by an adjustable bar, giving them free movement around any obstacle, such as clods, between rows; because of design the tool maintains a straight-away position unless it hits an obstacle. As many units can be mounted on a tractor as the tool bar is designed for.

Nelson is constructing the tool in three widths — 18 inch, 24 inch and 30 inch, with present retail prices running $21.50, $28.00 and $38.00. Depth of the wings is varied to meet specific requirements.

How did Nelson happen to get the idea?

"Well," he says, "I was out cultivating one Sunday when I should have been in church. I was having trouble with my furrowing machine and I just got to thinking that there must be a better way. The idea struck me — and that was it."

This was three years ago, and since then Nelson has been experimenting at his welding shop on old highway 65 near Tea Pot Dome. He has the "bugs" out now, and for several months he has been "in production" for farmers of the area. Patent is pending on the tool.

As for the future, Nelson says that with increasing demand, he may purchase necessary equipment and go into a manufacturing operation — so perhaps a new, "homegrown" industry is in the making for the Porterville community.

Nelson has two motives. "I want to make money out of this thing," he says, "but I also think that I have an economical tool that is bringing beneficial results that will really help farmers."

A TYPICAL camp site, top photo, and rest room facility, at the Frazier Mill camp grounds in the Mountain Home State forest, where 74 camp sites are now being developed. Under direction of George Tate, forestry work project foreman, men from the Mountain Home Conservation project are being used on the project, which is now well along but which will not be fully completed for some time. In each camp site is a table, piped water, and a fireplace; no two sites are the same, since the natural terrain is utilized; provision is being made for parking trailers - even the big ones; rest room facilities have been constructed. All materials used in camp construction, except fibre glass roofs for the rest rooms and concrete for the fireplaces, comes from the immediate area; work is progressing as personnel is available, however other projects, such as fighting fire take priority of conservation camp personnel. Eventual plan is to build a small dam on the stream that runs through the camp (the headwaters of Bear creek) to create a small lake, and a general recreation area is planned. Finished camp sites are now being used by vacationers. The new camp is in the Redwood country at the historic site of the old Frazier mill that was active around the turn of the century.

However, once the emergency has passed, human nature being what it is, you are apt to forget how valuable the prescription really was. #### Folk Dancers From Ariz. To Appear In Lindsay LINDSAY, Aug. 1 — A full evening of fast-paced folk dancing and musical numbers is in store for those who attend the performance of the Country Cousins of Yuma, Arizona, when they appear in Lindsay on Tuesday, August 13, under the sponsorship of the Lindsay chamber of commerce.

Among the varied numbers in the Country Cousins' presentation will be Lithuanian, Ukrainian, Scandinavian, Italian, German, and Israeli folk dances, as well as several American square dances such as the Robert E. Lee Clog, the Boogie Square, and their own Cousins in Orbit.

The 16 teen-age dancers will be visiting Lindsay during their annual summer tour through ten states, including an exhibition at the National Square Dance convention in St. Paul, Minnesota, and the Lindsay show will be their only stop in the San Joaquin valley. Dressed in the colorful costumes of various nations, this group of youngsters will perform their dances with skill and dexterity usually shown only by more mature performers.

Tickets for the performance will be available from any member of the chamber of commerce board of directors, and from the chamber office. All admissions will be $1, in the show scheduled for performance in the Olive Bowl.

Korean Veterans Urged To Check Their GI Insurance

VISALIA, Aug. 1 — Holders of GI "RS" insurance policies are reminded that they have only until September 13th to qualify for a special dividend by exchanging their policies for "W" term policies or by converting to permanent insurance.

Tulare County Service Officer F. M. Gifford says that the Veterans administration has made numerous efforts to acquaint holders of this policy of the opportunity.

According to Gifford, only GI insurance policyholders with "RS" insurance that was issued to Korean Conflict servicemen are concerned in the program. In order to qualify, though, they must exchange for the "W" term insurance — costing about a third of what they are now paying, or convert to a low-cost permanent plan of insurance.

The "W" insurance, says Gifford, cannot be renewed after age 50, but the insured may convert to any of six permanent plans while the term insurance is still in force.

For further information, check with the Tulare County Service office at Room 21-E court house in Visalia.

CHAPEL CHIMES

By
Rev. N. J.
Thompson

The recent decision of the Supreme Court, banning Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in our public schools, has brought shocked concern to Christians. They see it as a real threat to religion. It opens the door to the omission of the Bible and reference to God in oaths of office and pledges of truthfulness by court witnesses.

Is this the beginning of religious suppression in America? Is Government trying to deceive us unto believing we're better off without God and His Bible? Is Government telling us to forget God and look to Washington instead for help and guidance?

The suppression of religion in our schools can only result in creating contempt in the classroom for the Holy Bible and the Lord's Prayer. This is exactly what the Communists want!

J. Edgar Hoover says, "Deep religious belief is one of the prime deterrents to Communist advancement. So the Communists are trying to destroy religion in the countries they control. This is done through exerting pressure to keep young people away from the church. When an ageing congregation does not replenish itself with people, it will eventually die, and hence no church."

With some 33 million of our American boys and girls unchurched, we should be thoroughly alarmed. These children receive no religious training whatever, either at church or day school. To keep America from sinking to the level of Sodom and Gomorrah, and incurring God's judgment, our children must learn spiritual values. They must learn about God. They must be told that fulfilled prophecies and archeological research confirm the immutable veracity of God's Word.

Dad and Mom, open that dusty Bible! And teach Johnny and Mary to pray, from their heart: "Our Father, Which art in heaven..."

VISALIA — Preliminary plans for construction of a $250,000 Justice Court building in Visalia have been approved by the county board of supervisors, and the architectural firm of Fletcher, Abbott and Krikorian ordered to proceed with work on the 12,400 square foot structure that will house two court rooms. ## We Only Heard

BY BILL RODGERS

CHARLES MATHIS, of Dinuba, has been reappointed by Governor E. G. Brown to the California Advisory Board of Furniture and Bedding, according to the UPI. Now what kind of a boondoggling operation is that board, which is only one among a growing many? And will someone please tell us how you advise furniture and bedding . . . Also in the political payoff by appointment category is our old, but former, friend, Harold J. "Butch" Powers, at one time Lt. Governor of the state, at one time holding ambitions to be governor, and throughout most of his lifetime a Republican office holder. But Butchy Boy jumped into the Democrat camp during the last gubernatorial campaign, dropping Nixon and embracing Brown. For this bit of astute politicking, Butchy was appointed to the State Fair board, a rather pitiful pittance for such a major political leap . . . But now Butchy has his payoff — Gov. Brown has appointed him director of the State Department of Professional and Vocational Standards — at $17,365 per year.

HIGHWAY 190 is not only the future "Sierra to the Sea" route as well as the future trans-Sierra route, but it is right now, a most interesting highway if a traveler will just look at what he sees when he turns off 99 highway south of Tipton. For along Highway 190 is an objective presentation of this "diversity" that we are always talking about in Tulare county — major diversity in that a traveler will see great agricultural areas, an industry or two, great recreation areas, and, off a bit to the side, a major state institution . . . Take agriculture, for instance, between Lake Success and Highway 99 a motorist sees right beside the road cotton, alfalfa, sugar beets, oranges, rice, vineyards, safflower, milo, field corn, irrigated pasture, blackeye beans (if you're a Texan, they're blackeye peas), plums, peaches, dairies and dairy cattle, Herefords, Angus, sheep, Arabian horses, poultry, and probably a few other items of agriculture that we missed . . . But the point is that when you stop to think about it, Highway 190 goes through quiet a country, from the "Main street of California" to the Great Western Divide; yes sir, quite a country.

UP AND at 'em Bushfaces! Are we mice or DOLLS! Did courage and wisdom pass into the past with the end of the Centennial, or are we again on the move? Do we grow beards, or don't we? Are we going to sign up, or aren't we? What's your answer, Mystic Knights of the Supreme Order of Bushfaces? . . . We'll let you know definitely about our own personal decision on a beard or not a beard after we hold a high level conference with that DOLL around our house . . . The rest of you, get fearless! Let not a DOLL deter you!

WHEN WILL the last big Oak tree disappear? In 50 years, 75 years? Or is some kind of firm move going to be started to preserve the Oak trees that were once so common in this area. Oh sure, we still have Oaks within the city of Porterville, and there are still Oak trees around the farming area. But how long will they last? Time has a way of passing; old trees have a way of falling in the path of what we call progress, and all of a sudden folks wake up to the fact that the trees — maybe Oak trees, are gone . . . Someone could do something about the preservation of Oak trees, now; it will be more difficult if the last big Oak disappears some day.
